The poem, "Carry Me Back To Thee", recited by Mr. Heron follows:

"Virginia, grand old state, my home,
My love for thee, sweet land divine,
Wherever I may chance to roam
Shall dwell within this heart of mine.
And carry me back to thee.

"Your verdure hills are rolling free,
Your winding rivers sweep along
Amid the meadows to the sea,
And fill my soul with nature's song.
And carry me back to thee.

"Your rich brown earth, just newly plowed,
Your rfragrant flowers kissde by the breeze,
Your feathered songsters, gay and proud,
Wake in my heart sweet memories,
And carry me back to thee.

"Your olden days of tragic worth,
Sacred long as time shall run;
Appomattox gave a greater nation birth,
In defeat immortal Lee united peace had won .
All carry me back to thee.

"That all-softening, overpowering knell
The tocsin of the soul,—the dinner bell."

WHEN Byron wrote those lines, we surmise he was hungry. For we have all heard and heeded that all-softening sound. If the dinner bell is to be a real tocsin of the soul, the dinner must be good. It needn't be expensive. You can serve an excellent dinner for twenty-five cents per person, providing your menu is chosen for taste and dietetic balance, and each dish is prepared with your heart in the work. Here's how:

Creamed Tuna Fish on Toast 15¢

that has followed. Unfortunately, it has had the cooperation of finance and government and will likewise have to have their cooperation in adjusting its affairs to a saner course. What, in fact, did the leaders of finance do to encourage the expansion which took place in the last decade? What, if anything, did they do to prevent such expansion with the consequences they certainly did know or should have known would follow?

Father DARKLEAF'S Column

BY C.H.R.

John Bryan, of Vera, claims he onct got $40 for shoeing a horse. But it happened to be in Confederate money.

* * *

Columnist must fill their ems and picas. Oscar Odd McIntyre, for 18 years most readable of New York columnists, last week stated that Charles M. Schwab always looked the part of a capitalist. Nerts. The late Father Mickle, priest in Cape Charles, Va., once offered to give Charles M. Schwab the price of a meal ticket because "he looked like he needed it."

* * *

"The best trip I ever had," declares T. A. Walton, with his wife back from attending a Baptist Convention in Florida. "I visited the fountain of youth and feel 60 instead of 75."

* * *

Feeling the urge to go exploring, Father Darkleaf recently visited Appomattox's water and ice plant, piloted by W. M. Hancock, I was enlightened as to interesting facts of the town's ice and water business. The town tank holds 30,000 gallons and has to be filled twice per day. The old wooden tank is now used by a local filling station and the change from the wooden tank to the present metal one necessitated cutting off water only three hours. "It was just luck we happened to strike this wonderful water," declares Mr. Hancock. "We went down about 18 feet and hit rock. After another 18 feet of solid rock, we hit an eight inch space before more rock which goes down at least 100 feet. The water was so good, Dr. D. N. Twyman suggested supplying his house with it and the idea of supplying the town with a water system grew from the idea. For 8 years our water has tested perfect and even in the drought the supply was plentiful." Then Father Darkleaf had the ice business explained to him. It takes 48 hours to freeze a 300 pound can. You keep it clear by running air through it. Mr. Hancock has space for 108 cans and can turn out all the ice you and I can use.

Styling music is a characteristic of Virginia. Someday Father Darkleaf would like to sponsor a stringed music tournament in this section! Wouldn't that be fun?
